

Gerd Bayer is a tenured faculty member (Akademischer Oberrat & Privatdozent) at Erlangen University, having previously taught at the University of Toronto, at Case Western Reserve University, and at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. The author of 'Greener, more mysterious processes of mind!': Natur als Dichtungsprinzip bei John Fowles (LIT, 2004), the editor of Mediating Germany: Popular Culture between Tradition and Innovation (Cambridge Scholars, 2006), of the Europe volume of The Greenwood Encyclopedia of World Popular Culture (Greenwood, 2006), and of Heavy Metal Music in Britain (Ashgate, 2009), as well as the coeditor, with Rudolf Freiburg, of Literatur und Holocaust (Königshausen & Neumann, 2008) and, with Ebbe Klitgard, of Narrative Developments from Chaucer to Defoe (Routledge, 2011), he has also published articles on postmodern and postcolonial literature, early modern fiction, Holocaust studies, mockumentary film, and heavy metal. He recently completed a monograph on paratextual poetics in the Restoration novel and is currently working on a four-volume edition of John Fowles's unpublished fiction.